CAR PARKS

THERE will be general agreement with the suggestion put forward by the President of the Hongkong Automobile Association, Mr. J. J. Money, that new buildings in the central districts of Hongkong and Kowloon should have garage space. Unfortunately, however, this is an idea which, though superficially impressive, will be difficult to implement.

The ideal would be basement parking areas, but there are few sites even in the centre of the city on which new buildings are being erected today that are big enough to take enough cars to make underground car parks worthwhile.

Hongkong's main difficulty is that space is scarce, in big demand and therefore building sites tend to be small. A 10,000 square-foot site—like the Shell building—would take about 40 cars. On its own, a garage this size would not help much, but if ten new buildings a year each provided space for 40 cars, we would have the equivalent of a large multi-storey car park. The economies—and the difficulties—of building garages—this size, however, have to be considered.

THE "all-in" multi-storey buildings that go up in the back and even the main streets of central Hongkong are doing the ground floor, they could never have garages. And on many of the bigger sites there is not sufficient length or breadth even to put down a ramp to an underground park. In addition the ramp takes up space. There are also official objections to underground parking because of engine fumes, but it would add to the cost of a not very spacious garage. Then again there have been cases already where owners have provided car parks under their building and then found more profitable uses for them. One in Kowloon turned his garage space into a motor car showroom. Another turned garage space into a parking space is a condition of the renewal of a lease. Government must insist that this space is used for the proper purpose.

THREE AIRLINES APPLY TO BEGIN OPERATIONS

CHEAP AIR SERVICES TO HK

Hearings Begin At Legislative Council Chamber

The Chairman of a private British airline seeking operation rights into the Colony told an Air Licensing board which began hearings this morning that the fares proposed by his company were so much lower than any existing ones that they would create a new volume of business here.

Mr H. Bamburg, Chairman of Eagle Aviation Ltd., submitted also that the proposed services would not materially divert the traffic services of British Overseas Airways Corporation.

8 Service Revolvers Missing

Big Search By Police

An extensive investigation is being conducted by the military and the civil police into the disappearance of eight service revolvers from an Army unit in the New Territories two days ago.

A large-scale search is underway, both inside and outside the camp and several addresses in various parts of the Colony have been visited and searched in the course of these investigations.

A Government spokesman said this morning that many people, both civilian and military personnel had been questioned, but no arrests had yet been made.

UK Space Programme Not To Overlap

London, April 29.

Mr W. J. Taylor, Parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Supply, told the Commons tonight that the Government was giving active consideration to the question of Britain engaging in an earth satellite programme.

A Labour member, Mr Geoffrey de Freitas, raised the question of using the missiles Blue Streak and Black Knight during the fringes in Australia for Royal Air Force training—as vehicles for launching satellites containing apparatus for scientific research in space.

"I am thinking of British satellites of about a ton acting as space laboratories for about ten years."

"It would be ridiculous to try to duplicate what the Russians and Americans are doing, but there is plenty to be done without overlapping," Mr de Freitas said.

Mr Taylor said: "Merely to send up another satellite into orbit would be of little advantage, even in prestige."

The subject was occupying the Government's close attention and he hoped it would not be necessary to wait long for more information.—Router.

I.M. MacTavish Off To See The Cup Final

Jock Sloan (China Mail Sports writer, I. M. MacTavish, and Programme Controller of Rediffusion Television) left Kai Tak by Boac Comet 4 jet-liner today on a "long weekend" to see the Cup Final.

Mr Sloan, leading Hongkong newspaper, radio and TV sports commentator, will be appearing on television in Britain tomorrow.

He planned his jet-age long weekend in co-operation with Boac in order to be able to give Hongkong football fans a first-hand account of the battle between Cup finalists Luton Town and Nottingham Forest.

His report will be published in the China Mail. He is taking with him to London two special presents. One is a set of silver spoons bearing the crest of the Hongkong Football Association. They are a presentation to Stanley Matthews, the Football wizard, who delighted the fans here when Blackpool F. C. visited the Colony last year. The gift carries the good wishes of Association members and supporters.

Rattan Monkey
The other is a rattan monkey commissioned by local supporters of Luton Town. The idea is to express their hope that Luton will make a "monkey" out of Nottingham Forest.

He is due in London 2 1/2 hours after taking off from Kai Tak by Boac Comet 4 jet-liner at 8.40 a.m. next Tuesday.

28 KILLED IN AIR CRASH

Madrid, April 29.

All 28 people aboard a Spanish airliner, flying from Barcelona to Madrid, lost their lives today when the plane crashed in rugged country.

Among the passengers was Spain's European gymnastic champion, Joaquin Blume and his wife. The wreckage was sighted by a group of six peasants returning to their village of Valdemeca about 100 miles east of Madrid.

Rescue Teams
Three of them hurried to the village to give the alarm and the others made their way towards the wrecked plane, which was reported to have been completely destroyed in the crash. Rescue teams were also sent out at once.

The Spanish airline Iberia, owners of the plane, had not suffered an accident since October 28, 1957, when a Tanager-Madrid plane crashed near the Spanish capital with the loss of 21 lives.

Joaquin Blume, who was killed in the crash, won the European individual gymnastics championships two years ago and was among the favourites for the gymnastics events at next year's Rome Olympic Games.

Blume, who was 25, became Spanish gymnastics champion in 1950.—France-Press.

MRS ROGERS

To Write A Book About Hongkong

Well-known Miami artist and journalist, Mrs. Anita Rogers, announced before leaving Hongkong late last night that she was going to write a book about the Colony.

Mrs Rogers, who writes for the Miami Daily New Herald, left on the President Wilson after an almost five months stay here.

She plans to return in the autumn. While here, Mrs Rogers has painted several landscapes and seascapes of the Colony and has sold some to her friends. "I love Hongkong so much," she said before the ship sailed, "and I am so sorry to leave."

Dulles: Now An Improvement Report Doctors

Washington, April 29.

The State Department today reported improvement in the "comfort and general condition" of the former Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles.

A press officer, Joseph Reap, said there had been a "general easing of the pain" since the end of last week.

Today's report, which Mr Reap said was prepared by Mr Dulles' doctors, was the first indicating improvement in Mr Dulles' general condition since a suspected malignancy was found in the lower part of his neck.

The statement read by Mr Reap to newsmen said: "His spirits are good and his weight is stationary."

Visits Officials

Mr Dulles visited aides for an hour at mid-day and chatted with his son, the Rev. Avery Dulles, S.J., at 4 p.m. His brother, Allen W. Dulles, Central Intelligence Agency Director, visited him later in the afternoon.

Some significance was seen in the fact that the former Secretary's weight has been stationary during the last week. Officials said they doubted some news reports claiming that Mr Dulles had lost as much as 50 lbs since the beginning of his most recent bout with cancer.—U.P.I.

More Cuba Invaders On The Way To Panama

By RONALD BATCHELOR

Panama City, April 29. Panamanian authorities said today they had received information that more than 100 armed mercenaries were on their way from Cuba to reinforce the invaders of the village Nombre de Dios.

Another landing of mercenaries could upset the precarious truce arranged by Cuban Army emissaries who are trying to persuade the 90-odd invaders to surrender.

It could also make more difficult the task of an investigating commission of the Organisation of American States which flew into Panama City before dawn today.

Sources close to the Government reported the Commandant of the National Guard, Bolivar Vallarino, was pressing for a decision to attack and wipe out the invaders, but President Ernesto De la Guardia is under strong pressure to abide by the machinery of the OAS.

The OAS investigators—of the United States, Brazil, Paraguay, Argentina and Costa Rica—began their on-the-spot investigation by visiting President De la Guardia, and conferring with his Foreign Minister, Senor Miguel Moreno, and the American Ambassador, Mr Julian Harrington.—Reuter.

Ankara Is New Bagdad Pact HQ

Ankara, April 29.

Ankara has been named as the permanent headquarters of the Baghdad pact organisation. It was announced today.

The decision was made at a meeting of the council of deputies of the Baghdad pact who met here yesterday.

When the pact was founded, Bagdad was named as its official headquarters. After the Iraqi revolution of July 14 last year, the headquarters was transferred temporarily to Ankara but the transfer was neither permanent nor official until today.

Iraq left the Baghdad pact on March 24. However the name of the pact remains unchanged even if Bagdad has withdrawn. It was decided to keep the name of "Bagdad pact" in reference to the place where the pact was signed.—France-Press.

SURPRISE DISCOVERY BY U.S. AIR FORCE

Washington, April 29.

United States B-47 bombers—mainstay of the nation's strategic air force defence—have been found to have certain weaknesses in their fuselage construction, it was announced today.

General N. A. Preston, assistant Air Force Chief of Staff, made the announcement at a session held in camera before the Budgetary Commission of the body that was studying ways of keeping the Strategic Air Force's bombers in the air and on the alert round the clock.

He said that by reason of these weaknesses it was difficult to know what the life of these bombers would now be. He added, however, that he did not mean by this that they were liable to crash tomorrow.

For this reason General Preston declared, the Air Force intended increasingly to transfer the burden of these operations to the more modern B-52 bombers, which had recently undergone special tests to discover if they too had weaknesses in their structure.—France-Press.

Students Threaten To Boycott Princess Margaret Visit

Exeter, April 29. The students of Exeter University were today urged to boycott a visit by Princess Margaret unless changes were made in the arrangements.

The Princess is due to go to the University on May 8 to open a new arts block.

At a meeting last night the guild of students decided to press for more informality in the visit, and protested against the "red tape" surrounding the arrangements.

It also passed a resolution strongly protesting at the lack of co-operation between the university authorities and the students.

Mr Roderick Ross, secretary of the university, said today the students' protests could not be answered until the Vice-Chancellor, Dr. J. W. Cook, returned on Friday from a visit to London.

SINGAPORE LEADER WARNS AGAINST PAP GOVERNMENT

Monty's Brief Reply About Talking Too Much

London, April 29. Field Marshal Lord Montgomery wasn't at all perturbed today to hear what President Eisenhower and the British Press were saying about him.

Lord Montgomery declined all comment to Moscow newsmen but didn't hesitate to pick up a direct telephone call from United Press International in London.

"Sir," he was told, "we wondered if you were aware of President Eisenhower's news conference statement today."

"No," he replied. REACTION "The President stated that his reaction to your comments on the American leadership was pretty well expressed by the British Press."

"What's that?" "Well, Sir, the consensus was you talked too much."

"Interesting."

"Do you have anything to say about the President's remark or the editorials in the London papers?" "No comment. Thank you. Good-bye." — U.P.I.

MIKOYAN'S OPINION

Moscow, April 29. Soviet Vice-Premier Anastas Mikoyan said today that Field Marshal Lord Montgomery's visit to Moscow may contribute to the cause of world peace.

Mr Mikoyan made his comment at a Japanese Embassy reception in honour of the Emperor's birthday. He was answering questions of news correspondents attending the reception on Lord Montgomery's visit.

"The possibility of such a contribution to peace exists," he said.

Asked if he had heard what Lord Montgomery had said about the United States in a television interview, Mr Mikoyan said, "Very many irritating things have been said on both sides which tend to prolong the World War. Let's forget everything said in the past and who said what and start from 'the beginning.'"

Singapore, April 29. Another warning that Singapore will become a "dead and ruined city" if the wrong government were returned on May 30 was given by a Straits Chinese leader.

Dr T. W. Ong, President of the Straits Chinese British Association, in a circular to members said "It is up to all of us to see that it does not happen."

Dr Ong said because of the antics of the Singapore politicians in the Legislative Assembly and the City Council, many factories and business houses had shifted or were in the course of shifting to the Federation, resulting in more unemployment.

Dr Ong was referring to the People's Action Party. Reminding his fellow members of the days of the Japanese military occupation, Dr Ong said, "The question before us is — do we want to experience again the mental torture and uncertainty, the fear in our hearts, the corruption and bribery, where people must forget their conscience in order to survive?"

Pioneers He added, "Our ancestors, the pioneers of this country, built and developed Singapore to become the proudest, the wealthiest and the healthiest city in the Far East."

Asking the people of Singapore to vote wisely and choose the right candidates, Dr Ong declared, "This is the most crucial and vital time of our life. Vote wisely without fear and favour."

The Chairman of the left-wing People's Action Party, Dr Toh Chin Chye, told the people of Singapore his party was equipped in every way to give Singapore a "stable, honest and new government, which can be truly called the government of people and for the people."

Speaking over Radio Singapore Dr Toh said his party was the only stable organisation which had the people behind it. He was making the party's first of a series of 10 political broadcasts until the eve of the elections. — U.P.I.

Soviet Oil Experts Banned

Washington, April 29. The State Department announced today that it had forbidden a delegation of Soviet oil specialists to visit various regions in the United States which are closed by law to Soviet citizens.

The Soviet oil specialists were due to take part in a congress on oil problems in New York from May 31 to June 6 and afterwards to have gone on tour with the other congress delegates to the regions which are banned to Soviet citizens.

The State Department spokesman said that the American Government had been prepared to be more flexible on this issue if the Soviet Government had allowed a group of American specialists to visit the Soviet Union. — France-Press.

The sculptor of the statue was Stalin Prize winner, Grigor Fostnikov. — France-Press.

Cuban War Crimes Court Sentences Woman To Death

Havana, April 29. A Cuban war crimes court meted out the first death sentence to a woman today.

A war crimes tribunal meeting in Havana's Cuban Fortress condemned Dr Olga Herrera Marcos to death by a firing squad for "informing" on three revolutionaries killed by Batista police in 1953.

The witness who clinched the prosecution's case was her former husband, Alfredo Flores, who said he was so sure she was guilty he would face a firing squad himself if it were proved otherwise.

Six more convicted, "war criminals" were executed today, bringing the official total since January 1 to 592. — U.P.I.

New Delhi, April 29. Chinese troops posted at the passes in southern Tibet leading to India have captured a number of fleeing Tibetans, according to reports reaching here.

No official confirmation of the reports was available, but security measures along the Sino-Indian border are believed to have been tightened. It is believed that the strict vigilance being exercised along all possible routes to India or Bhutan will cause an appreciable fall in the number of Tibetan refugees who safely reach India.

All trade routes have been virtually sealed and the Chinese army is now reported to be carrying out mopping-up operations over a wide area. — U.P.I.

Sir Winston In Fighting Form

For one of his relatively few platform appearances nowadays, Sir Winston Churchill went to his constituency, Woodford, on the outskirts of London. In fighting form he drubbed the Socialist opposition, teased Khrushchev for calling him the author of the cold war, and drew a tumult of applause by announcing that — at 84 — he was willing to stand for Woodford again at the next General Election. SUMMIT TALKS WILL OPEN NEW ERA

—Macmillan Tells Royal Academy

London, April 29.

The British Prime Minister, Harold Macmillan, said tonight he felt a summit meeting would actually be held, and that it would open an era of "competitive co-existence."

Western Ministers Consider Plan

Paris, April 30.

The British, French, United States and West German Foreign Ministers, on the second day of secret talks here, met to consider a redrafted version of a Western "package plan" to be put to the Soviet Union in Geneva.

Experts from the four Western powers, setting on instructions from the Ministers, worked on certain aspects of the plan for settling the Berlin, German and European security problems until late last night. They were told to have the new version ready when the ministers meet today.

No details were disclosed under a strict news "black-out," but a United States spokesman said last night that the opening sessions of the ministerial talks had gone "smoothly and no major differences developed." The talk is expected to continue.—Reuter.

20,000 Less Unemployed In England

London, April 29.

Unemployment in Britain fell by 20,000 to a figure of 531,000 between March 9 and April 13, the Ministry of Labour announced tonight. Of the 531,000, about 460,000 were wholly unemployed and 45,000 temporarily stopped from work. Expressed as a proportion of the total number of employees, unemployment in mid-April was 2.4 per cent.

Ireland

In March, the percentage of unemployed was 2.5 and in April of last year it was two per cent. Unemployment among adults decreased by 28,000 during the period under review but among boys and girls it increased at about 8,000.

In Northern Ireland, not included in the above figure, the unemployed on April 13 totalled about 37,400.

This represented 7.9 per cent of the work force and was 3,000 fewer than on March 9.—Reuter.

NEW CONCEPTION OF MISSILE DEFENCE SHOWN

Aberdeen, Md., April 29.

The United States Army today showed journalists at the modern arms study centre here an entirely new conception in anti-missile missiles.

Technicians explained that the principle involved was what they described as the directed nuclear effects of jetting incandescent radioactive particles produced by a high altitude nuclear explosion. Experiments were being conducted in a towering sphere in which almost total vacuum can be created.

The jetting theory is a direct result of nuclear tests at Johnston Island in the Pacific, carried out last year before the U.S. Government called a one-year cessation of tests dating from last October.

The destruction or putting out of action of enemy ballistic missiles makes use of the great heat or radiations released by a nuclear explosion above the atmosphere, the technicians said.

New Fuel

Army officials also told the journalists that a new solid fuel had been perfected that burns 15 per cent more thrust than fuels of the kind at present in use in the United States.

The fuel had among its components nitro-cellulose, nitro-peroxide, perchlorate, aluminium and oxide of magnesium.

They said that as from July 1, the army will start launching five-stage scientific missiles to heights of 1240 miles — the launching pads for these rockets will be situated on Wallops Island, off the coast of Virginia, the officials added.

They also disclosed that the army is engaged in perfecting printing devices for tactical nuclear weapons.

Mystery Object Spotted In Sky

Adelaide, April 29.

A brilliant sky object with strange flashing lights was reported to have passed over Adelaide early today.

Hundreds of people said they saw the object at 5.30 a.m.

Mr J. Frost, leader of the Adelaide moon-watch team, said his team had set their telescopes for a passage of the American satellite, Explorer IV, when "about 5.37 a.m. we saw what at first appeared to be an aircraft due south coming in low and travelling from west to east."

"Suddenly, many more lights appeared, flashing on and off and travelling at the same speed," he said. Aviation authorities said no aircraft were known to be in the area at the time. — China Mail Special.

"McCarthyism Is Hooey"

New York, April 29.

Former President Harry S. Truman told students at Columbia University today that "the era of McCarthyism" was one of the worst periods of hysteria in the history of the United States.

He assailed demagogues who inflame the public mind by false assertions and warned the students to be on guard against them.

"We are going through a period now," he said, "where some of the witch hunters in the House and Senate are charging things that do not exist."

TRUMAN ATTACKS "HYSTERIA"

"We will understand this when all this hooey is over. A demagogue is a dangerous man."

"The Un-American Activities Committee is the most un-American thing in the country today."

"Ridicule is the best way to handle those demagogues who misrepresent. When you stick a pin in a stuffed shirt and let the air out he's through."

Earlier in the day Mr Truman said he believed the new Secretary of State, Mr Christian A. Herter, is "a good man."

Asked to compare him to his predecessor, Mr John Foster Dulles, Mr Truman said: "Let's not make any odious comparisons. He couldn't be any worse than Dulles if he tried." He made the comment to reporters during his traditional morning walk.

Mr Truman had said yesterday that Mr Dulles "did a good job when he had a good team," referring to his service under Secretary of State Dean Acheson in his own administration. — U.P.I.

Captain Tells Of Army Riot

Shepton Mallet, Eng., April 29.

An army captain said at a mutiny court-martial here today that soldiers under sentence in an army prison threw kit boxes, bedding and chamber pots out of their rooms during a six-hour riot. Captain A. A. Hall, company commander at the grim 300-year-old stone gaol here used as Britain's only military prison, was giving evidence at the trial of 13 men for mutiny with violence. He said he was duty officer on the day and heard a row going on while "B" company was at its mid-day meal. "There was a terrific noise and shouting and I doubled to the door and looked through the observation hole. Tables and chairs were upturned and meal tins thrown about."

Blood On Face

He went in and shouted: "Get away to your rooms." After some hesitation the soldiers did so. "Quite a few of them, as they went into their rooms, threw kit boxes, bedding and chamber pots on to the safety netting outside. I saw Staff Sergeant Marks defending himself against three or four men. There was blood on his face and he was covered with food. Flight Sergeant Pitt appeared to be in a very dazed condition."

No T.V.

Staff Sergeant T. Macqueen, MM, said he looked through the peephole and saw a man swinging a galvanised bucket. Later he heard a man shout: "We were told we had no T.V. because of shortage of staff. There is plenty of bloody staff here now." Flight Sergeant C. D. Pitt said 66 prisoners were eating when the riot began, and the odds were against the staff. He was butted in the head and then saw the man who butted him trying to pull the telephone from the wall. He had four stitches in a cut over his left eye.—China Mail Special.

"I Still Love Her"—Tony

BUT ANITA IS OFF TO NEW YORK

Hollywood, April 29. Actor Anthony Steel said today he still hopes to patch things up with his voluptuous blonde wife, Anita Ekberg.

Steel said he hadn't seen his wife for 14 weeks and that she has announced through her attorney that "we are separated."

"I talked to Anita yesterday on the telephone. I hope to see her in person later today."

"I am still in love with her. I want to avoid a divorce if possible. Other people have separated, gone back together and lived happily. I'm hoping we can."

Picture Offers
Anita meanwhile announced that she plans to leave for New York next week and is scheduled for an early appearance on the Steve Allen television show. She arrived in Los Angeles from Europe on Monday. "If she said 'I decide on a divorce, Anita probably will fly to California for the hearing," a friend of the actress said. "If not, she probably will return to Rome. She has picture offers waiting for her in Europe."

Steel said he had no idea where his wife is staying. "I don't think she wants me at the moment." — U.P.I.

ROUND UP

SEVEN GIRLS GO DOWN COAL MINE

SEVEN girls have been down in a narrow, Yorkshire, Colliery to see for themselves the conditions in which miners have to work. Seven typists employed by the National Union of Miners and the National Coal Board, descended a 440-ft shaft, crawled along a three-foot seam and slithered through a foot of water to reach the coal face. They were led by the colliery manager. "This will give the girls a good background to the industry—and if they marry miners it will help them understand their husbands' problems," observed the N.C.B. general manager when the girls came up from the mine.

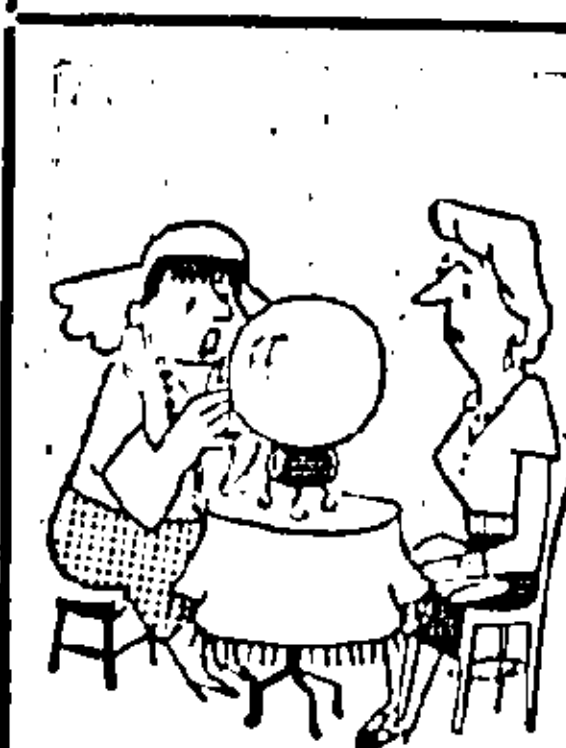

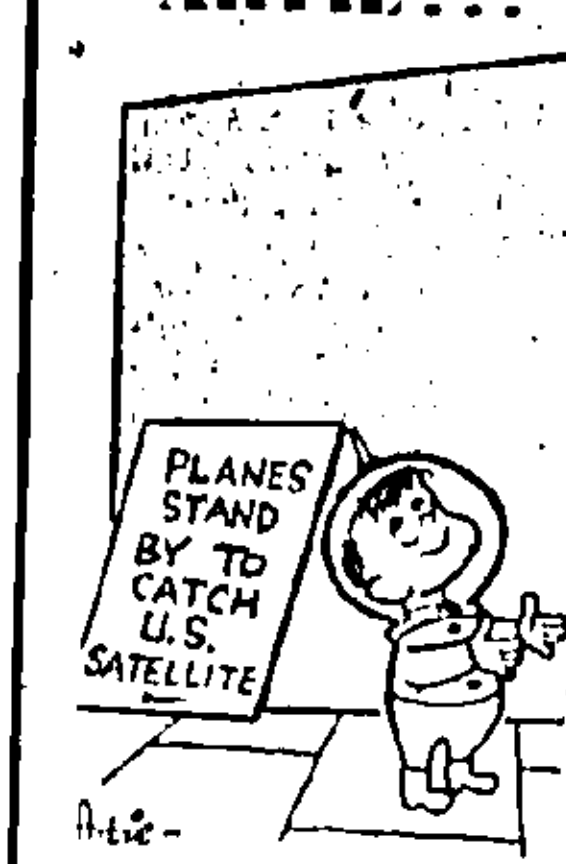

"GLIDER TRADE FAIR"

THE first International Glider Trade Fair is being staged at Lasham, Hampshire, this year during the British National Gliding Championships, from May 9 to 10. In the past manufacturers have been obliged to visit all the gliding sites in Britain in order to obtain pilots' reactions to new equipment. Lasham is one of the largest exporters of glider pilots in the world. More than 130 pilots will be taking part in the championships and a small army of volunteers will be giving up their holidays so that the flying programme can be carried out smoothly.

THE NAVY GOES FOR MILK

FOUR automatic milk machines installed in Devonport dockyard are doing a heavy trade with sailors. Said Mr W. J. Akers, dairy manager of the company which installed two of them, "They do a tremendous business at night and each machine's 210 half-pint cartons are always gone in the morning. We seem to be changing the Navy's drinking habits."

DON IDDON'S DIARY

THE WOMAN BEHIND CHRISTIAN HERTER, AMERICA'S NEW SECRETARY OF STATE, JOINS PAT NIXON AND MAMIE EISENHOWER, THE WIVES AT THE TOP

New York. "CHRIS, it's up to you and these gentlemen," said Jim Hagerty, the President's Press Secretary, introducing the new Secretary of State to the Press, at Augusta, Georgia.

Use of the first name "Chris" seemed a little too informal, rather too brash an exercise in palmarship to some of the reporters present, but no one mentioned it until afterwards.

Later some said that during the conference it was Mister Hagerty who acted more like the Secretary of State-designate and Mr Dulles's successor than Christian Archibald Herter.

Frequently during the question-and-answer session it was "Chris" who answered the questions which were put to "Chris".

I'm sure Mr Hagerty was trying to help, and certainly he did help, as Mr Herter, slightly overcome by his new eminence, seemed confused about names and dates and places.

Under attack

We will have to give him a while to settle down and realise that he is no longer "the second man in a one-man show," his own description of his role under Mr Dulles.

He has been given a cordial send-off by most of the Congress and the country, but it has been an embarrassing and worrying week for him.

President Eisenhower admits privately that he erred in saying that several excellent men were under consideration as Dulles's successor when actually he was waiting only a medical report on Herter.

Then the big-selling Herter newspapers and the New York Daily News came out for Henry Cabot Lodge as Secretary of State, and said cruelly that a man in crutches and suffering from arthritis "would hardly look to our enemies or our friends like a man representing a great and powerful nation." [What about Roosevelt?]

I have felt for Mr Herter as he has explained to the morbid millions: "I can get around perfectly well. The only trouble that I have at all is standing for a long time or walking considerable distances, but with these sticks I can move along very comfortably."

As a hostess

Mr Herter has taken his ordeal well, sustained by his wife, Mary Caroline, whose nickname is Mac.

She is likely to play as important a part in Herter's new career as Pat Nixon is doing in the Vice-President's. Pat is accompanying Dick Nixon to Moscow and Mac will accompany Chris Herter abroad whenever possible.

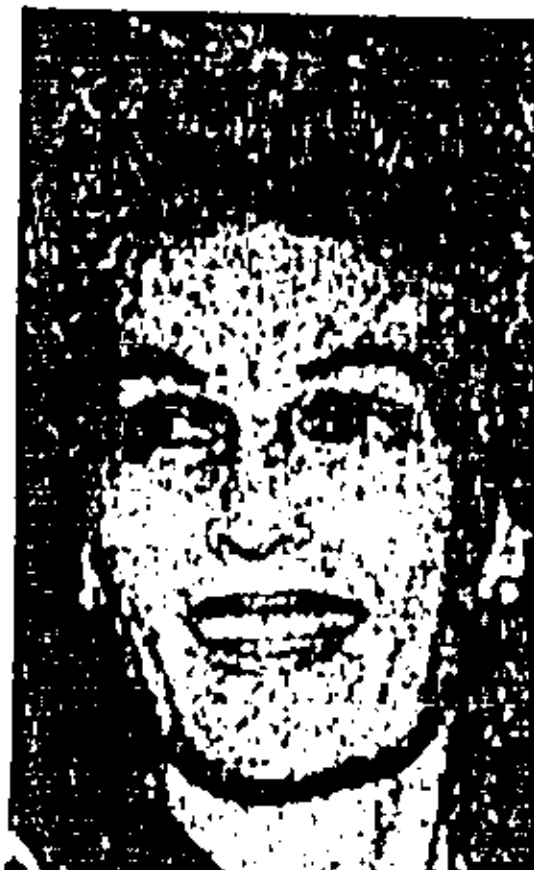

"Pat and Mac"—how very American, or maybe Irish and Scottish, but anyway certainly likable.

Mrs Herter, a very rich woman in her own right—she is a member of the Pratt family, of Standard Oil—is famous as a Washington hostess.

Some of the capital's most glittering parties have been held in their large 150-year-old house in Georgetown. The Herter's own plantation in South Carolina and a farm in Massachusetts, as well as the Washington house. Mrs Herter is a talented painter.

The Herter's have four children and 14 grandchildren. Recently she said: "I cannot talk about my husband's nomination by the President until the Senate has acted—that would be premature. I was planning to accompany my husband to the Foreign Ministers' meeting in Paris and the conference in Geneva, in my event."

Incidentally Mac Herter was born in Brooklyn, the Wigam of the United States.

Mamie Eisenhower, Pat Nixon, and Mac Herter—a formidable and charming trio.

For peace

How more absurd can the generals get? Well, curiously, they can, for here is General Ira Eaker, now retired (fortunately), urging that the United States must strike the first blow. "It hope our policy of retaliation includes launching our Strategic Air Force when Russian intent becomes clearly offensive but before their nuclear bombs are loaded and launched on our way."

While some generals and a few politicians stir up bad blood between the British and American, work for peace and trade.

Radiant Sonia

Some of our best men—Lewis Chapman, Sir Hugh Beaver, Sir Donald Anderson, Sir Eric Vansittart Bower, Sir Gerard d'Erlanger, Lord Rodes, of course, Sir Hugh Stephenson, our Consul here, Sir Vincent Tewson, Sir Edward Thompson, and Commander Edward Whitehead, Mr Schweppes himself—have come forward with plans for the All-British Exhibition here next year.

So have their counterparts in American business, Lewis Douglas, James Farley, Miss Dorothy Shaver, etc.

Perhaps these people should appear before the Senate committees, not the big brass.

I had lunch with a member of the Bolshoi Ballet, when I met in Moscow and where we will call Sonia, the day after the big triumph of the opening at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Sonia was radiant. "What an audience, so generous, they expect a welcome like this, so we had to applaud them back."

I said, "Sit your vodka because we will have to get out of here quick (we were in the English Grill, opposite the skating rink, in Rockefeller Plaza) because of the big air-raid rehearsal."

"Everyone to the shelters. Everyone off the streets. We are being hydrogen and atom bombed."

Sonia went white. "What unfortunate timing just after last night."

I called over the waiter and said, "The check, please. We are off to the shelters."

As a star

He looked puzzled but produced the bill, and I paid and left.

But the alarm went two minutes early, at 12.20, and there was the elevator-ran shouting: "Everyone to the shelters. No elevator service. To the shelters!"

So we turned back, and then I looked at the English Grill, which is practically enclosed by great glass windows. The bar was jammed, the tables were almost all occupied, and my waiter spotted me and said: "There was no need to leave. This is a shelter, in a way. Another vodka?"

We said: "Another vodka."

They are talking about Toni Bern's sensational success at the St Regis Maikennette. Toni, married three months to Donald Campbell, tells me: "I did not know what life was until I met

Mr and Mrs HERTER: They will go abroad together whenever possible.

Welch has become a temporary film star, not a small-part player. He stars with James Stewart in Anatomy of a Murder, the best seller, and director Otto Preminger says: "The old man needs scarcely any coaching or rehearsing."

New Yorkers are talking about the hit Mr and Mrs Billy Butlin made in Las Vegas and Manhattan. Mrs Butlin is a beautiful blonde. About Elizabeth Taylor again and her statement: "I've taken a couple of million dollar bets that I will retire and be a hausfrau by the time

So lonely

Donald, I'm so very lonely when he is away. All I do is watch television. I didn't live or love until Donald came along. I miss him so very much."

I said: "How long has he been away?"

Toni said: "Two days."

Chapter II of the China Mail's expose on dope addiction:

How It Often Starts

By Eric Sewell

I ASKED the doctors what, from their experience, they would say in warning to anyone foolish enough to experiment with drugs. I asked them what sort of people started on drugs and what would happen when they did.

Here are their answers:

"Addicts often start on drugs for the thrill, or the kicks, or whatever you like to call it. They are usually weak-willed, wretched, unbalanced creatures with little character."

"They may begin by mixing with others who are using drugs, perhaps in some of the seamy jazz clubs. They are tempted to try for themselves. Marijuana and alcohol become insufficient for their purpose of 'feeling high,' so they try heroin or cocaine."

"For nine months or so they are on top of the world—or think they are. They feel they are living fast, on the crest, highly-sexed. Then the men become impotent, the women disinterested in sex."

"They become complete and object slaves to drugs."

"Some of these junkies spend $20 a day on drugs. They must get that money somewhere. The longer a person is addicted, the more money he wants and the more money he requires to buy them. He will do anything—eventually—to get money for drugs. He is quite capable of killing."

There, then, is an objective appraisal of the junkies with whom these two doctors are dealing. Among them was Billy, about whom I have already told you. In the misery of his addiction to drugs, he admits he wanted to kill the doctor who was his only hope of salvation.

But only because of his condition. Billy now has a pathetic gratitude towards that same doctor. He shudders when he thinks what drugs brought him to contemplate.

How was he reduced to this? After an ordinary childhood and adolescence, Billy came to the Big City as a trainee waiter. He began drinking heavily, gambling. He started borrowing off his workmates, and got into such a mess over money that, to avoid being sacked, he resigned.

"One night in a cafe, I met Margaret, as I will call her. She was a call-girl, 21, the same age as myself. We were both miserable and lonely. We started living together."

"Whatever anyone may think, I loved Margaret. I still love her. We lived together for nearly four years."

"About this time I was going to a club to listen to the jazz music. I could smell marijuana in the air, saw others slipping out to smoke their reefer. It seemed to put an end to their troubles, so I decided to try for myself."

"I bought two little packets from one of the musicians for ten shillings, and made myself five cigarettes."

"That was the start. I never thought it would lead to addiction. Even when I graduated to heroin, because marijuana had lost its effect, I still thought I was all right."

"Looking back now, I realise that within a few weeks of starting on heroin I was firmly 'hooked.'"

Billy didn't tell Margaret he had started on heroin. She hated the idea of drugs. For months, he injected himself quietly and tried to hide the effects. Then one night...

"We had a terrible quarrel. But eventually she gave in. She knew there was nothing she could do now. I was hooked. I was a junkie. So she accepted it...and gave me the money I needed to buy it on the black market."

In four years, Billy says, Margaret gave him more than £7,000 for drugs.

Margaret had a boy-friend, a wealthy young aristocrat. This man knew Billy as Margaret's step-brother. They became friends.

Little did he know that the money he was giving Margaret was being passed on to Billy to buy more and more drugs...or that when he and Billy went out "right"—clubbing together—the money Billy spent had come originally from him.

Although Billy reached a peak of drugged stupefaction when he could take 120 heroin pills and 15 grains of cocaine in one day, Margaret wouldn't touch drugs herself.

Then came the supreme irony....

SONNY MOYSE of New York, editor of the Bridge World, was on duty last night, playing bridge at the Cavendish Club.

As a writer Sonny is familiar with all safety plays and I happened to watch him execute a simple but important one to win a rubber.

He won the second heart trick with the king and played ace and another heart right back. He would have to play the clubs eventually but maybe West would lead them for him.

No such luck. The shift was to a diamond and Sonny had to go after clubs himself. He needed three tricks in the club suit and proceeded to make them by leading low to dummy's

How to get the best from your chicken...

NOW that it is as economic to buy a broiler chicken as a weekend joint, more and more of these young birds are finding their way on to the family table. Are you getting the best out of them? Here are some ideas you might like to try.

Broiler means griller, but the birds really are the perfect roaststers. They need just under an hour at 375 to 400 degrees F., or gas mark 5 to 6. And plain roasting is the most popular.

Vary the flavour a little. Rosemary is lovely and you can buy sprigs of it. Cream about three walnuts of butter with salt and pepper—pop it into the bird together with the sprig of rosemary.

Spread all over the outside with creamed butter and place it on its side for the first half of the cooking and then turn it to the other side. All the while the rosemary flavoured butter is seeping into the breast meat. This way it is evenly cooked and remains juicy inside.

Boil several times with the butter from the pan. A 12-week broiler will serve four. Lift it out on to the platter, add to the pan a cup or so of giblet stock, flavoured if you like with a little dry white wine or elder.

Stab around with the spoon to release the delicious residue. To thicken, blend one teaspoon of arrowroot with one dessertspoonful of water, stir this into the boiling gravy making a very slightly thickened sauce.

Broiler with tarragon cream

Brust 12 leaves of tarragon and work into them three walnuts of butter well seasoned with salt and pepper. Put inside the bird and roast in a covered tin for the same time as above. Remove, and into the pan work a flat teaspoonful of flour.

Add a quarter pint of single cream and finish it with a small nut of butter. Pour boiling water on several tarragon leaves, flavoured if you like with a little dry white wine or elder.

Cut the chicken into four, place on a hot entree dish, and spoon the cream sauce over them.

By HELEN BURKE

Young chicken in casserole

Prepare a dozen tiny onions, and a small bunch of really baby carrots, dice three ounces of unsmoked bacon. Fry it a little, and toss the vegetables in it.

Meanwhile, roast the chicken as above, but half-way through the cooking turn it into a casserole and surround it with the vegetables and bacon.

Season to taste and with a little of the giblet stock, cover and cook gently until the chicken is ready, a matter of 40 minutes.

A few minutes before the chicken is taken out, add two ounces of tiny mushrooms, cook for a minute or two in a little butter, add a good cup of cooked peas.

Chicken Maryland

This is the most deceptively easy fried chicken I know. Joint a broiler into four leg pieces, two wings, two breasts. Put the carcass back to simmer with the giblets.

Pass the chicken pieces through seasoned flour, then into egg beaten with one tablespoonful of water finally into sieved bread-crumbs.

Use a large frying pan, melt one quarter of a pound of butter and add a tablespoonful of olive oil to keep the butter from burning.

Fry not too quickly so that while the outside takes on a nice warm golden tone the inside too is cooked.

To make a rich creamy sauce to go with this, simply sprinkle into the frying pan one dessertspoonful of flour, work well in and add enough top milk so that the sauce is not too thick.

WHY DO WE EAT OUT?

A WOMAN who passes up steak for a less expensive restaurant entree isn't necessarily the thrifty type.

She may skip steak because she thinks no special talent is needed to cook it, and no unusual ingredients go into its preparation.

Several women gave this explanation in a 42-family survey made by psychologist Peter Siegle to determine why we like to eat out.

This yen for the unusual is one of women's main reasons for dining out, the study disclosed. "Even the flighty career girl has a hidden yearning to cook for her man. Whether she knows it or not, that's one reason she enjoys dining out."

"Courtship couples," said Siegle, "find dining out romantic. The world's greasy pans seem far away when you're seated at a table for two in a softly-lighted restaurant. This also gives a man a chance to be chivalrous—to treat his girl guests gallantly by seating her, helping her order, and amusing her with his conversation."

THE FEMALE ROLE

"Part of the basic female role is to provide sustenance to those close to her," the psychologist explained. "That's why any woman loves to see a man eat—even if it's not her cooking."

restaurant. Men tend to resist family dining out, the study revealed. They eat out frequently, often find business lunches necessary, and feel dining out is hard on the bank account.

Even the working girls—and bachelor businessmen—follow a similar pattern, the study showed. Women consistently seek fancier restaurants and spend a disproportionate amount of their earnings for lunch, Siegle said.

"Women in restaurants change their minds much more frequently than men," said Siegle. "This is new."

If you want to live up lunch with a guessing game, try to identify executives by listening for this question to the waiter: "What's good today?"

Siegle says it is often asked by executives who are faced with decisions all day long. At lunch they are especially prone to avoid choices, preferring to follow a set pattern.

If business lunches dull your husband's enthusiasm for dinners on the town, pass along this advice from Siegle.

"Every man should consider the act of dining and dining his wife an investment in domestic bliss. It's a rare woman who will bite the hand that feeds her."

Walters and waitresses questioned in the survey confirmed the suspicion that many men order the same thing, daily, with only slight variations. Unlike women, they don't enjoy the ritual of long and careful scrutiny of the menu. Nor do they ask about ingredients in sauces and salads.

Simon was holding an open umbrella over his head. And this was strange because the sun was shining and there wasn't a cloud in the sky.

"Good morning, Simon," said Knarf.

"It looks like rain," said Simon.

"Good morning, Simon," said Teddy.

"I bet it's going to rain," said Simon.

Warm Weather Causes Extra Foot Problems

POLISH ALWAYS seems to smear off at the sides so use a cotton-tipped swab to remove smudges when you pedicure.

By JEANNE D'ARCY

POUNCE: hot pavement isn't calculated to keep feet comfortable or happy. Add the fact that summer weather makes feet, swell, and you'll understand why feet are more troublesome at this time of year than they are in other seasons.

What can you do about it? Several things!

SHOP LATE

First of all, if you're buying new shoes, don't do it early in the morning. Stop at the shoe store late in the day, so you'll be sure of it that will be comfortable when heat puffs feet up a bit.

Second, check your stocking size. If nylons are too short and tight, feet will suffer. Too-big stockings create problems, too. They slip into folds that are painful to the foot. It's like the old fairy tale about the prince and the pea. The fold may be a tiny one, but walk on it and it feels enormously uncomfortable.

COTTON FEET

Salesgirls, who are on their feet all day, have another stocking tip: Wear nylons that have mercerized cotton feet. They don't draw, are far more comfortable. Socks for teenagers are made of mercerized cotton, too. For good fit, socks should be a half inch longer than the longest toe.

Very few women avoid foot troubles. High heels, fashionable and becoming, account for this fact. Instead of reserving them for dress occasions, women wear them all the time. Shoes with sensible heels should be included in your wardrobe and they should be worn often.

When corns and calluses do occur, why suffer with them? A visit to a chiropodist can save you lots of pain.

Be careful not to add to foot problems when you give yourself a pedicure. Don't cut nails too short! Do clip them straight across. Nip into the sides and you may give an ingrown toenail a chance to start.

For a neat pedicure, use a cotton-tipped swab to remove polish that's smeared at the sides. When nails are dry, massage feet with a linolen lotion—it feels good, keeps skin soft.

Sprinkle a bit of talcum in shoes and you're ready to step out in comfort.

STORIES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

The Cloud On The Hill

—It Brought Simon A Pie Instead of Rain—

By MAX TRELL

KNARF, the Shadow-Boy with the Turned-About Nanny, and his friends, Teddy the Stuffed Bear, and Hiawatha, the Small-Sized Wooden Indian, were walking together, arm in arm, down Book Boulevard when they turned into Cranberry Lane. There, sitting on a fence, was Simple Simon.

Simon was holding an open umbrella over his head. And this was strange because the sun was shining and there wasn't a cloud in the sky.

"Good morning, Simon," said Knarf.

"It looks like rain," said Simon.

"Good morning, Simon," said Teddy.

"I'm sure it looks like rain," said Simon.

"Good morning, Simon," said Knarf.

"I bet it's going to rain," said Simon.

"Bet you don't know what you're talking about," said Knarf.

At this, Simple Simon peered out from beneath the umbrella. He took a quick squint at the sky, then instantly pulled his head back.

On Top Of The Hill

"Now I'm sure it's going to rain," he said.

"I don't know how you can say such a thing," said Knarf.

"The sky is blue, the sun is

By this time, Hiawatha, who had very sharp eyes, put his hand to his forehead to keep the sun out of his eyes and looked sharply at the smoke or cloud or what it was at the top of the hill at the end of the road.

"It's coming this way," he announced.

Before You Get Wet

"I'm sure it's going to rain," said Simple Simon. "You'd better all come under this umbrella before you get wet."

Meanwhile, the cloud kept coming closer and closer. All of a sudden Knarf said: "I see what it is! It's the Pie-man! He's coming down the road with his pie wagon, pulled by his horse!"

"The horse is kicking up a whole cloud of dust," said Teddy.

Simon sat on the fence with an umbrella over his head.

"Bah! It's no cloud!" muttered Hiawatha. "There's no rain in a wagon full of pies!"

All of a sudden, Simple Simon folded up the umbrella, sprang off the fence and went rushing up to the Pie-man.

What Kind Of Pies?

"What kind of pies have you got, Pie-man?" asked Simon.

FLOYD PATTERSON 10-1 FAVOURITE IN TOMORROW'S FIGHT

Question Is How Long London Can Last

FLOYD PATTERSON

Indianapolis, April 29. There is no question here of who is going to win the world heavyweight boxing title fight here on Friday. The only question being asked by the fight fans is how long it will take world champion, Floyd Patterson, to knock out his British challenger, Brian London.

Described as a "sharpening-up bout" for Patterson before he seriously stakes his title against Sweden's Ingemar Johansson in New York on June 25, the world champion will work for an early knock-out punch on London's long pointed jaw.

Patterson, the 10-1 favourite, cannot afford to prolong the fight and run the risk of a slight injury less than two months before he meets Johansson. An injury would rob him of the handsome purse for the New York title fight.

Yet he must be careful how he handles out his victory punches on the massive, tough, black-pig boxer, who is as strong as a bull and has the heart of a lion.

Patterson was forced to put back his fight with Archie Moore in 1958 when he smashed his right fist while punishing Hurricane Jackson.

Speed, Skill, Power

In training sessions, Patterson has demonstrated speed, skill and power, such as no heavyweight seen in Britain since the war could match. He battered his chief sparring partner, like Thomas, mercilessly round the ring with a flurry of vicious hooks and jabs that at times totalled seven in a row.

Thomas finished up on his back wondering whether there was not an easier way of earning the £5 a day he receives for being the champion's human punching bag.

London, the son of former British heavyweight, Jack London, needed plenty of courage to stick his prominent chin out at Patterson. But no doubt he thinks it worth the £21,000 he will get for stepping into the ring on Friday night.

But even this handsome sum does not explain why he is prepared to risk his future career and face the possibility of a severe beating from the world's best and hardest hitting heavyweight.

London Confident

Despite the odds against him and the savage attacks made on the match by almost the entire boxing world, London seems the most confident man in Indianapolis.

In training, London looks like a hard trier rather than a potential world champion. He takes a long time to warm up against his sparring partners, with his father shouting at him: "Get at him lad, get at him."

His left jabs and right crosses against his sparring partner, Dasty Rhodes, could hurt Patterson, who did not hit back. Patterson will.

Cus D'Amato, the world champion's manager, who organised the fight down to every detail, except fighting over backwards to help London meet Patterson.

He snubbed Henry Cooper who took the British and Empire title from London, because Cooper wanted too much money to meet Patterson.

Patterson's manager has given London the finest training establishment and supplied him with American equipment which is unobtainable in Britain.

But when he gave London the privilege of deciding whether they should fight with six or eight ounce gloves, London replied: "I fight with my fists. If you want me to wear gloves just find me a pair and let me get on with the job."

Favourites Who Lost

On his chances against the world champion, the British boxer said: "If Rademacher and Harrison were able to send Patterson to the canvas for a knock-out, I can beat him by a knock-out. Even if he is one of the very few people in the world to believe in this, a lucky swipe from London could knock the crown off Patterson's head.

Odd-on boxing favourites have been beaten. Max Baer was a ten to one favourite when he lost his title to Jim Braddock.

Moore in 1958 when he smashed his right fist while punishing Hurricane Jackson.

Twenty-four-year-old Patterson defended his title for the fourth time since he took it from Archie Moore with a fifth round knock-out in 1956.

He then knocked out Hurricane Jackson in the 10th round on July 29, 1957. Peter Rademacher in the 6th round on August 22, 1957 and Ray Harrison in the 12th round on August 18, 1958.

25 Knock-Out Wins

Since the champion turned professional he has won 35 fights, 25 of them by knock-outs. He has won 15 of his last fights by a knock-out and his only defeat was when he was outpointed by Joey Maxim.

London, also 24 years old, has 25 professional bouts to his credit, scoring 22 wins, 10 by knock-outs and losing four bouts. In his last fight, he lost to Henry Cooper—France-Press.

K.C.C. CRUSH ARMY IN KNOCK-OUT HOCKEY FINAL

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

Kowloon Cricket Club "A", present Colony second division league leaders, won the Holland Cup knock-out hockey competition at Cox's Path yesterday by crushing Army's senior eleven by six goals to two.

This was hockey at its best — fast, skilful, yet at times violent. Army had the skill, but at no stage during the entire game were they able to match the fiery enthusiasm of this magnificent KCC team.

A word of praise must be extended to unmet Krishna Lal and Mahan Singh who kept the game well under control throughout.

It would be unfair to single out any member of the civilians team for special mention — they all played well. They kept the ball moving at a terrific pace, and never allowed the Army defence to settle down.

As the game progressed, wingers Buddy Carnell on the right and Billy Silvey on the left, gained in confidence and proceeded to tear the Army defence wide open with mercurial bursts of speed.

In the middle, Andy Sloan and John Simoes were on hand to turn any half-chance into a goal. The other forward, Paul Cross at inside-right, acted as a link-up between half-backs and forwards and his terrific-like tackling upset all Army hopes of mid-field superiority.

The defensive covering of halves Ross Coffey and Collins and backs Nery and Chamberlain, bordered on the fantastic. Coffey's main job was to watch Army's goal-scoring John Hingbottom and watch him did. Hingbottom was completely out of the game, so much so, in fact, that at half-time he changed places with centre-half Green.

This was where the Army strategists slipped up badly.

The lanky Hingbottom is first and foremost a forward. Throughout the season he has been the brains of the Army attack. Without him up front the forwards lacked cohesion and ideas. Green's substitution of brains for brains failed disastrously after an early flurry of activity.

In the Army defence, Smith and Crosswell, A'Hearn and Bullard were never able to bring either Carnell or Silvey under control and this was the beginning and end of the story.

Carnell ended the match with two brilliant goals to his credit. Sloan picked up two and Simoes and Silvey had one each.

Hingbottom scored Army's first goal in the 4th minute of play when he had the better of David Coffey in a penalty bully to tie the score at 1-1.

In the second half, after about 12 minutes' play, Green, after bulldozing his way through the KCC defence, cracked in a hard drive to reduce their arrears at that time to 2-4.

On the way to the final, KCC had no easy games. All but one were against top first division sides, Reorio "A", Army "B" and Navy. Their players have matured amazingly during the season, many of them now being on the brink of Colony representation.

Their success yesterday was a just reward to their sheer fighting spirit and guts.

Pearson No-Balled Five Times For Throwing In Worcesters' Match Against Indians

London, April 29. The opening day of India's first big match of the tour at Worcester was highlighted by Derek Pearson, one of Worcestershire's three fast bowlers, being called five times for throwing by Sid Buller, the Test match umpire and former Worcestershire wicket-keeper.

A general cleaning up of English county bowlers, following the experiences of throwers by the MCC team in Australia, was foreshadowed in March at Lord's when the MCC announced that umpires would be given their full support in any action they took to ensure the game of this practice.

It is reckoned that there are about half a dozen bowlers in English cricket whose actions come under the category of throwing or jerking.

Uncalled Last Year Pearson went through last season uncalled. He took 62 wickets at just over 22 runs each, but today he was dismissed both India's opening batsmen, Contractor and Roy, in his first three overs. Buller twice no-balled him from square leg.

Pearson runs up to the crease with his left arm folded against his chest and he swings his right arm freely before delivering the ball.

Like all fast bowlers he mixes his speed and it seemed that when he was endeavouring to produce his fastest ball which is usually a real sizzer that he contrived the law in the opinion of the umpire.

Kenyon gave him every chance to redeem himself and when Pearson came on for his third spell later in the day, at the opposite end he emerged unscathed despite the fact that the other umpire, Emrys Davies, called him out for throwing.

By this time, Pearson had lost much of his fire and his direction suffered, but he managed a gem to the Indian batsmen.

Slow Scoring In these early days of the season it would be unwise to criticise the Indian batsmen too severely. Most of them are strangers to English conditions and all appeared to be more concerned with acclimatising themselves than with making runs.

Still if they are to become popular with English crowds they must quicken their tempo for a perfect pitch, they scored no more than 113 runs while losing half their wickets.

One of the biggest disappointments was Manjrekar who seven years ago, at the age of 20, made 133 in brilliant style against England in the first Test at Leeds.

This time, Manjrekar, who has increased considerably in bulk, occupied nearly three hours for 29.

Highest Scorer India owed much to Chandrakant Borde, a 24-year-old all-rounder, who has had experience of English cricket with Werneth in the Central Lancashire League.

Fortunate to be dropped at one from the first ball sent down by Horton, he also survived a chance to Derek Richardson at short leg when Aldridge shared the new ball with Finwell.

Batting number seven, he was only the day's highest scorer with 61 in three hours. Borde hit strongly to leg and also drove and cut well, getting 12 foups.

Gupte, the little leg-break bowler, stayed with him for the best stand, 39, but as in the past, Gupte, like so many Indian players, lapsed in concentration and a wild stroke brought his downfall with a high catch to Kenyon at mid-on.

Finally, Surendra Nath kept up his end without mistake for 40 minutes. So India finished with a score of 206 for eight wickets, made in six hours and 59 overs.

The Scores Scores were: India—205 eight (Borde not out 61, Manjrekar 29, Contractor 17 and Roy 13; Pearson three for 30, Aldridge two for 49 and Flavell two for 69—France-Press.

VILLA RELEGATED TO SECOND DIVISION LEAGUE

London, April 29. Aston Villa, the club with one of the proudest records in English soccer, were tonight relegated to the second division for only the second time in their long career in the football league.

A 1-1 draw against neighbours West Bromwich Albion at the Hawthorns, Birmingham, were not enough to save Villa. The other club threatened with relegation, Manchester City, won a home game 3-1 against Leicester City and finished their league programme with 31 points — one more than Villa.

Cup Record Villa, whose seven victories in the Football Association Cup is a record, were last relegated in 1936, but came back again in 1938. Portsmouth accompanying Villa into the second division next season.

Manchester City were a goal down to Leicester early in the first half, but Joe Hynes equalised before half-time and Ray Sambrook and Bill McAdam each scored after the interval. Villa, beaten by Nottingham Forest in this year's Cup semi-finals, never looked like beating West Bromwich and the goal scored by Gerry Hitchens was the first by Villa in four games.

Another relegation problem solved tonight was in the second division. Barnsley, whose chairman Mr Joe Richards is President of the Football League, were beaten 3-1 at home to Leyton Orient and toppled into division three.

Grimsby Town had already gone down from the second division. Results Results of tonight's British football matches were:

Combined Services triumphed by 212 points to 165 in their annual meeting against the Civilians at Boundary Street last Sunday.

Fortunately the weather was kind, and although the rain had made the track rather heavy, it did not affect the standard of the athletics.

Two Colony records were established during the meet. In the High Jump, Clarke of the Services bettered his previous height of 5 feet 11 1/2 inches. Jumping extremely well he cleared 6 feet on his second jump. He was most unfortunate in not getting any higher. Having cleared 6 feet he decided to have a go at 6 feet 1 inch. On his second jump he cleared the bar, but his trailing foot just touched the bar. Everyone had their hearts in their mouths, and were willing the bar to stay up. But it finally came down.

Hurdles Record

In the 440 yards hurdles, Warrington really went to town, and showed the local champion the way home. Hurdling very fluently he soon went into the lead, and broke the Colony record with a time of 60 seconds dead. This time is quite correct, because it has been reported in the papers that the time was 60.2 sec. This was the time clocked by Warrington, who was second in this event.

The 100 yds was a clear-cut victory for the Civilians. The nearest that the Services could get was in third place.

All three Services competitors in the Shot Put were successful. Bartholomew was first with a throw of 36 feet 11 inches.

Our 3-mile specialist, Milbourne ran a very bumpy race, and came in last place. He was winner in the 600 yds. time of 15 minutes 40 sec. Our three runners took the first three places, and from this event we gained full points.

One For The Book

The hammer event also gained us full points. Davis once again proving his superiority. His final throw was a distance of 121 ft. 6 1/2 ins. It was very noticeable how superior the Services were in the field events, gaining full points from nearly all of them.

The 440 yds was an event for the book, because it was anticipated that the Civilians would really give us a run for our money in this event. This was not so however. Our three runners, with Igoe in the lead took the first three places. Fighting all the way Igoe won with a time of 53 sec.

Bratton, a natural athlete, took the long jump with a distance of 20 ft 8 1/2 ins, and Phillips of the Services came in third. Warrington was once again in action in 120 yds hurdles, but was beaten into second place by Ip Kwok-ping. The time of 17.1 sec was very fast under the conditions.

As in all the field events the circus was an all-Services affair for the first three places. Bull was first, throwing 118 ft 7 ins, Clarke was second, and Bartholomew was third.

Gurkhas Excelled

In the mile, Banks our star man was unable to turn out because of illness, but Benito came into his own. So often in the past both Milbourne and Banks have been the stars, but as neither was competing, Benito proved his worth. Settling down very nicely, he won in the very good time of 4 mins 42.2 sec. This was a very good time, because the track was very heavy on top.

In the pole vault, Daggott was seen in action for the first time, and took some very good vaulting took first place with a height of 10 ft 9 inches. He did have a go at 11 ft but was unsuccessful.

R. Poon was too good for our runners in the 220 yds, and all three Civilians came in ahead of the Services. The time of 23.5 sec was quite good.

The javelin went to the Civilians, and our representatives could only manage 2nd and 3rd. With a throw of 108 ft 9 ins Chan Lap-fung beat Bede-Cox into second place by 10 ft 2 1/2 ins.

Close Race

The mile walk turned out to be a very close race, and at the finish King was only a yard behind Tang Cai. Glenn and Warr came in 1st and 2nd in the 880 yds, but the time of 2 mins 5.5 sec was rather slow. The Gurkhas from 48 Gurkha Bde really excelled themselves in the 6 miles, taking 2nd, 3rd, and 4th places.

In spite of this race being a foregone conclusion for the Civilians, the Gurkhas thought differently, and proved so with their placings.

With two events to go the Services were way ahead of the Civilians.

In the hop, step and jump Bratton showed once again what a very fine athlete he is by taking this event.

Our Last Instalment On The Great Men In Ring History LEGENDS IN THEIR LIFETIME

Floyd Patterson, A Born Fighter, Always Looked A Future Champion

By Harold Mayes

Pursed lips and the quizzical expression, a "what's-going-to-happen-to-me" look, are the outstanding characteristics of a young man who, strangely enough, has already put behind him the need to worry about where he may be going.

For although he is only 24, Floyd Patterson is now firmly established on the heavyweight throne.

Joe Louis, the immortal Brown Bomber, was already beyond Patterson's present age when he won for himself the distinction of being the youngest man ever to attain boxing's highest throne.

Youngest

The chances are that he will still be referred to, 100 years hence, as the youngest world heavyweight titleholder, for, just as there's an ultimate beyond which even the sub-four-minute millers may not be able to go so it would appear that Patterson has just about reached it in his chosen profession.

I saw this young man who, born in the appropriately named town of Waco, North Carolina, last night old man Archie Moore to win the boxing crown of crowns in Chicago, November, 1956.

He looked the part in training, far exceeding in manner of execution, what one was entitled to expect from a youngster with but 30 professional cuttings under his belt.

Like A Craftsman

He looked, without any doubt, a world champion of the future, but, with a ring general of the experience of Moore to contend with, it was almost to be visualized that his world championship right then.

When the moment came for him to do his job, however, he did it like a craftsman, and in

Schoolboy Causes Upset At English Amateur Golf Tourney

Formby, April 29. Richard Braddon, an 18-year-old schoolboy and the youngest player in the field, provided one of the main upsets in the English Amateur Golf Championship here today.

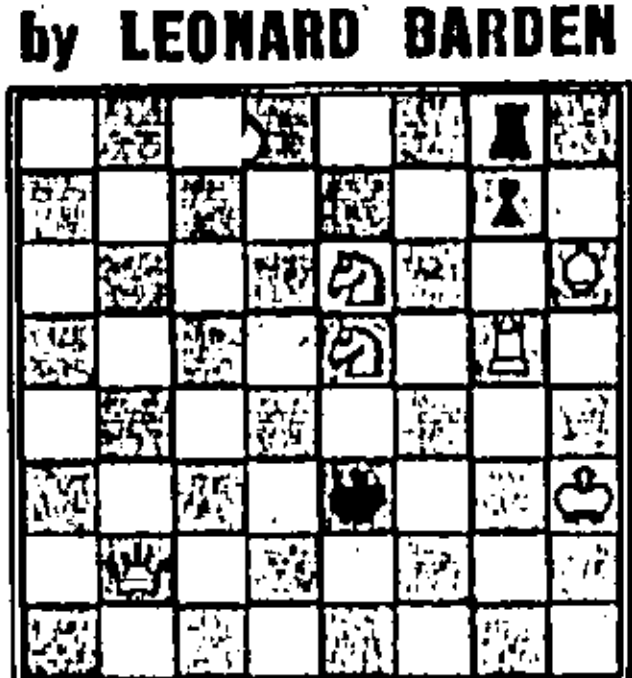

Braddon, who is due to start his final term at Charterhouse School on Friday, won his third round match by two and one over the experienced, 39-year-old Charlie Stone and is now in the last 16.

In tomorrow's fourth round Braddon meets the twice former winner, Alan Thirlwell. Another victory would mean that Braddon would not be at his school desk on Friday.

Yorkshire Off To A Good Start For Cricket Season

London, April 29.

Yorkshire made an impressive start to their cricket season today when they dismissed a strong looking MCC side here at Lord's for 77 runs and hit 134 for eight by the close.

England Test fast bowler Freddie Trueman claimed four for 29 and Melville Ryan, a right-arm fast-medium bowler, took four for 36. The MCC innings which lasted just under three hours, might have been more miserable, but for a fighting innings of 28 by Test wicketkeeper Roy Sweetman. At one stage, MCC had lost four wickets for seven runs.

Three Sixes

Tommy Greenough, Lancashire's 27-year-old candidate for a place as leg-spinner in England's Test team, had a shattering experience when he bowled for MCC.

In his first over, Yorkshire left-hander Brian Close clouted three successive deliveries for sixes. One landed in the road outside the grounds.

Though the over cost Greenough 22 runs he soon found a length and showed better control to dismiss Close (26) and Vic Wilson.—Reuters.

MANILA PRISON WAR MAKES U.S. RIOTS LOOK LIKE SCHOOL PICNICS

Manila.
Prison authorities have been unable to stop the rioting and gang killings which for the past 14 months have turned Muntipupa, the state penitentiary, into a virtual battleground.

Officials say that two opposing groups of convicts inside the sprawling prison, 30 miles east of Manila, are killing each other with weapons made of tin cans and rusty nails, sometimes under the very noses of the guards.
At the end of March, Gabriel Bucatin, reported to be a leader of one of the groups, was stabbed to death while he was leaving the wash-room of his prison barracks.
He was killed so quietly that the guards in the area did not know about it until the prisoners decided to tell them.

The following day, Bucatin's followers retaliated, killing three members of the rival group.
On the third day, the death toll had risen to five dead and four wounded.
Officials blame congestion in the prison as the main reason for this state of affairs.

More than 8,000 criminals, ranging from young first offenders to sex maniacs and hardened murderers, are thrown into a compound built to accommodate only 2,500.

With only 180 prison guards to keep order, they say, nothing much can be done to prevent trouble from erupting into violence so brutal as to be unbelievable to many people outside.

Hatchet men
During a two-day riot in February 1958, when 23 convicts were killed and 28 others wounded, a member of one faction was beheaded by "hatchet men" of the rival group.
The killers, laughing and clapping, passed the head of the murdered man round like a ball for some time before they finally got it and broke up the rioting groups.

The gang wars inside the prison compound erupted on February 10, 1958, when members of one gang known as the "Sigue-Sigue" group and the other known as the "Ojo" men began a series of killings.
A murder by one gang led to a retaliatory killing by the other, while organised riots enabled the prisoners to break out of their cells and roam round the compound in defiance of the small number of guards, who lined the walls of the compound, helpless to stop the disorder.

BY THE WAY by Beachcomber

BIGGER and bigger grow the bats that cluster in the world's bellies. I have just read about a just-telling stereo-phonograph record. It is described thus: "Forty-five minutes of train noises which clank and chuff across your living room from one loud-speaker to another."
No wonder the purveyors of conventional music from washboards, bits of tin and cellophane complain of unfair competition. No wonder an opera, with the apt title "Cecoco Junction," has been made from train noises. No wonder the English are now acknowledged to be a musical nation. The phrase used by listeners, "You've got the wrong station," has a new and more sinister meaning today.

Access hits out
THE Americans are supposed to be lusty. Yet in Nevada it takes six weeks to get a divorce through. By that time, if you marry someone else, you've got to wait another six weeks before you can marry the next on the list. So the divorce-jam piles up, and everybody is miserable.
(June Moonson.)

A wise decision
THE Egg Marketing Board announces that the scheme for floodlighting Mr Brynner's head has been abandoned now that he has taken to wearing a wig. A communique says: "Even Londoners know that eggs are bald, and any suggestion of an outsize egg in a wig would only bring ridicule on the board."
(June Moonson.)

Restoré courteous
DISCUSSING the report of a group of lawyers on proceedings for contempt of court, Mr Justice Cockfield recalled the case of a man who was fined for contempt, and replied quietly and venomously: "My lord, you understate my contempt for this court, if you imagine that the paltry sum you mention is a fair price for that contempt. Allow me, my lord, to inform you that my contempt is

MOST POWERFUL ROLLS ROYCE SOON ON MARKET

London.
Rolls Royce will market a new eight-cylinder, eight-litre model late this year or early in 1960, to combat increasing high-power competition in the U.S.

Rolls Royce refuse to confirm the report, but trade sources said secret trials of a prototype in Britain and elsewhere have been conducted in recent months and are nearly complete.
The new Rolls, the Phantom 5, will be the most powerful ever built.
Present models are six-cylinder, though eight-cylinder models are made to order.
The Queen, for instance, has one.
Rolls Royce still is selling extremely well all over the world, but is facing increasing competition from high-priced eight-cylinder cars in the U.S.
The Phantom 5, despite its name, will be an entirely new model, the sources said, with special brakes and suspension and new automatic transmission, as well as the new engine—U.P.I.

More Respect
Margaret said she saved the money for the car during her three years with the British army in Malaya. "There was nothing to spend my money on in the heart of the jungle," she said.
"Boy friends treat me with more respect now."
"I find everybody is terribly chivalrous to me since I bought it. The car seems to have an effect on people."
"Drivers always give me the right of way on the road, and once when I couldn't get to the start, everybody rushed to my aid," she said.
At parties Rolls-owner Ryder is introduced as "The girl with the Rolls."

COMPANY TO TENDER FOR RESERVOIR CONTRACT U.S. INTEREST IN SHEK PIK

do not materially divert traffic from the existing service of Hong Kong.
The crux of our argument is this: the fares proposed by Eagle Aviation are so much lower than any existing fares that they will create a new traveller and a new volume of business.
Mr. Barnburg said the terms of reference required that the airline should show that its services were low fare ones.
In London, the company had shown that the DC-8C's which it proposed to use could not be compared with the Comet or Britannia of Boac which operated normal services along this route.

BAGGAGE

The baggage allowance for the proposed services would be limited to 15 kilos, as compared with the 30 in the normal existing routes and 20 for tourists.

"We will provide a good cabin service," he went on, "but it is intended to eliminate all the frills."

Mr. Barnburg said economically the airline's proposals were perfectly feasible. The low fares could be done by cutting out unnecessary extravaganzas and by running on low overheads, among other things.

He stated that this type of proposed low fare already existed in other parts of the world, particularly in Australia and America.

Mr. Barnburg said this company had applied for a traffic stop in Aden between London and Hong Kong. It was proposed to reserve 20 seats for the London-Hong Kong service and six seats between Aden and the Colony.

SEATING

The aircraft would have a total of 102 seats. The London-Hong Kong through capacity would be 82 seats.

Turning to the Air Transport Regulations, 1949, which lay down certain stipulations for airline operations, Mr. Barnburg submitted that Eagle Aviation's proposal was for an entirely new service which would not divert existing traffic within the area.

He said he thought his company's proposal had attracted a considerable demand from members of the public who would otherwise not be able to travel by air at all.
Hearing is continuing.

Engineers To Look Over Proposed Site

The vice-president and six engineers of a large American construction company arrived in the Colony this morning to have a look over the site of the proposed new HK$220,000,000 dam in the Shek Pik valley on Lantau Island.

Mr W. R. Griggs, vice-president of the Vinnell Corporation of California, arrived this morning with four American and two Filipino engineers.

He said his company will be submitting a tender for the entire construction job.
Mr Griggs said that he and his team hope to get out to Lantau sometime tomorrow.

The Vinnell Corporation is an American company which has had construction associations with the Far East for the last 13 years. They are at present carrying out construction work in Formosa, Thailand, Manila, Korea, Iwo Jima, Laos and Cambodia.

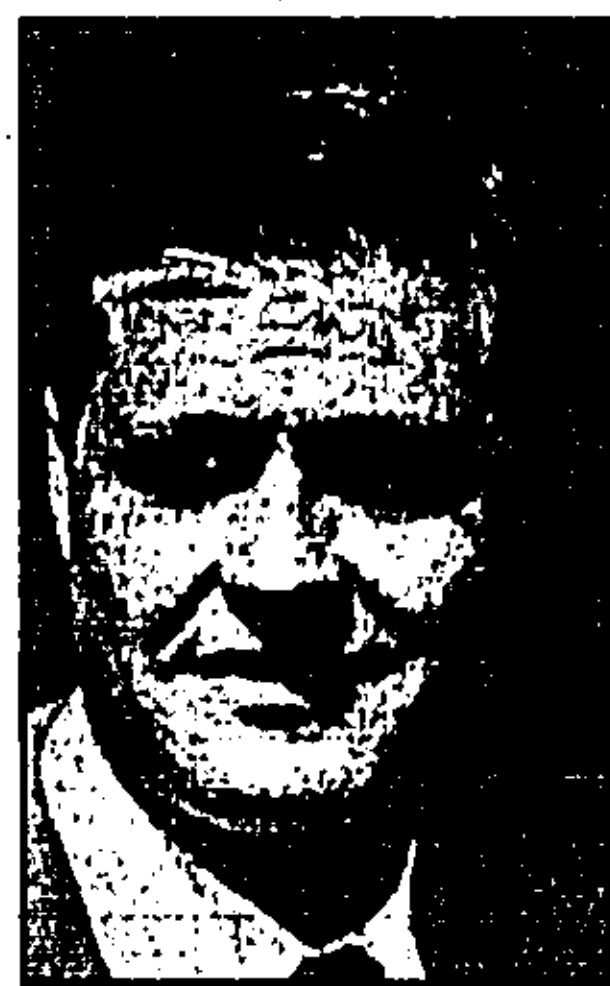

Swedish Experts To Tender For Dam

A Swedish dam construction expert arrived this morning, on a similar assignment. Mr. Sile Wikstrom, of the Widmark and Flager Company of Stockholm, arrived by P&O from Manila this morning to visit Lantau and study the Shek Pik Valley.

Mr Wikstrom said that within the next few days, he and two other Swedish engineers would make the trip out to Lantau.

His company would be submitting a tender for the dam construction soon, he said.

Mr Wikstrom said he had just completed some work on a hydro-electric project which his company was carrying out about 200 miles north of Manila. The two other engineers will be arriving this afternoon, he said.

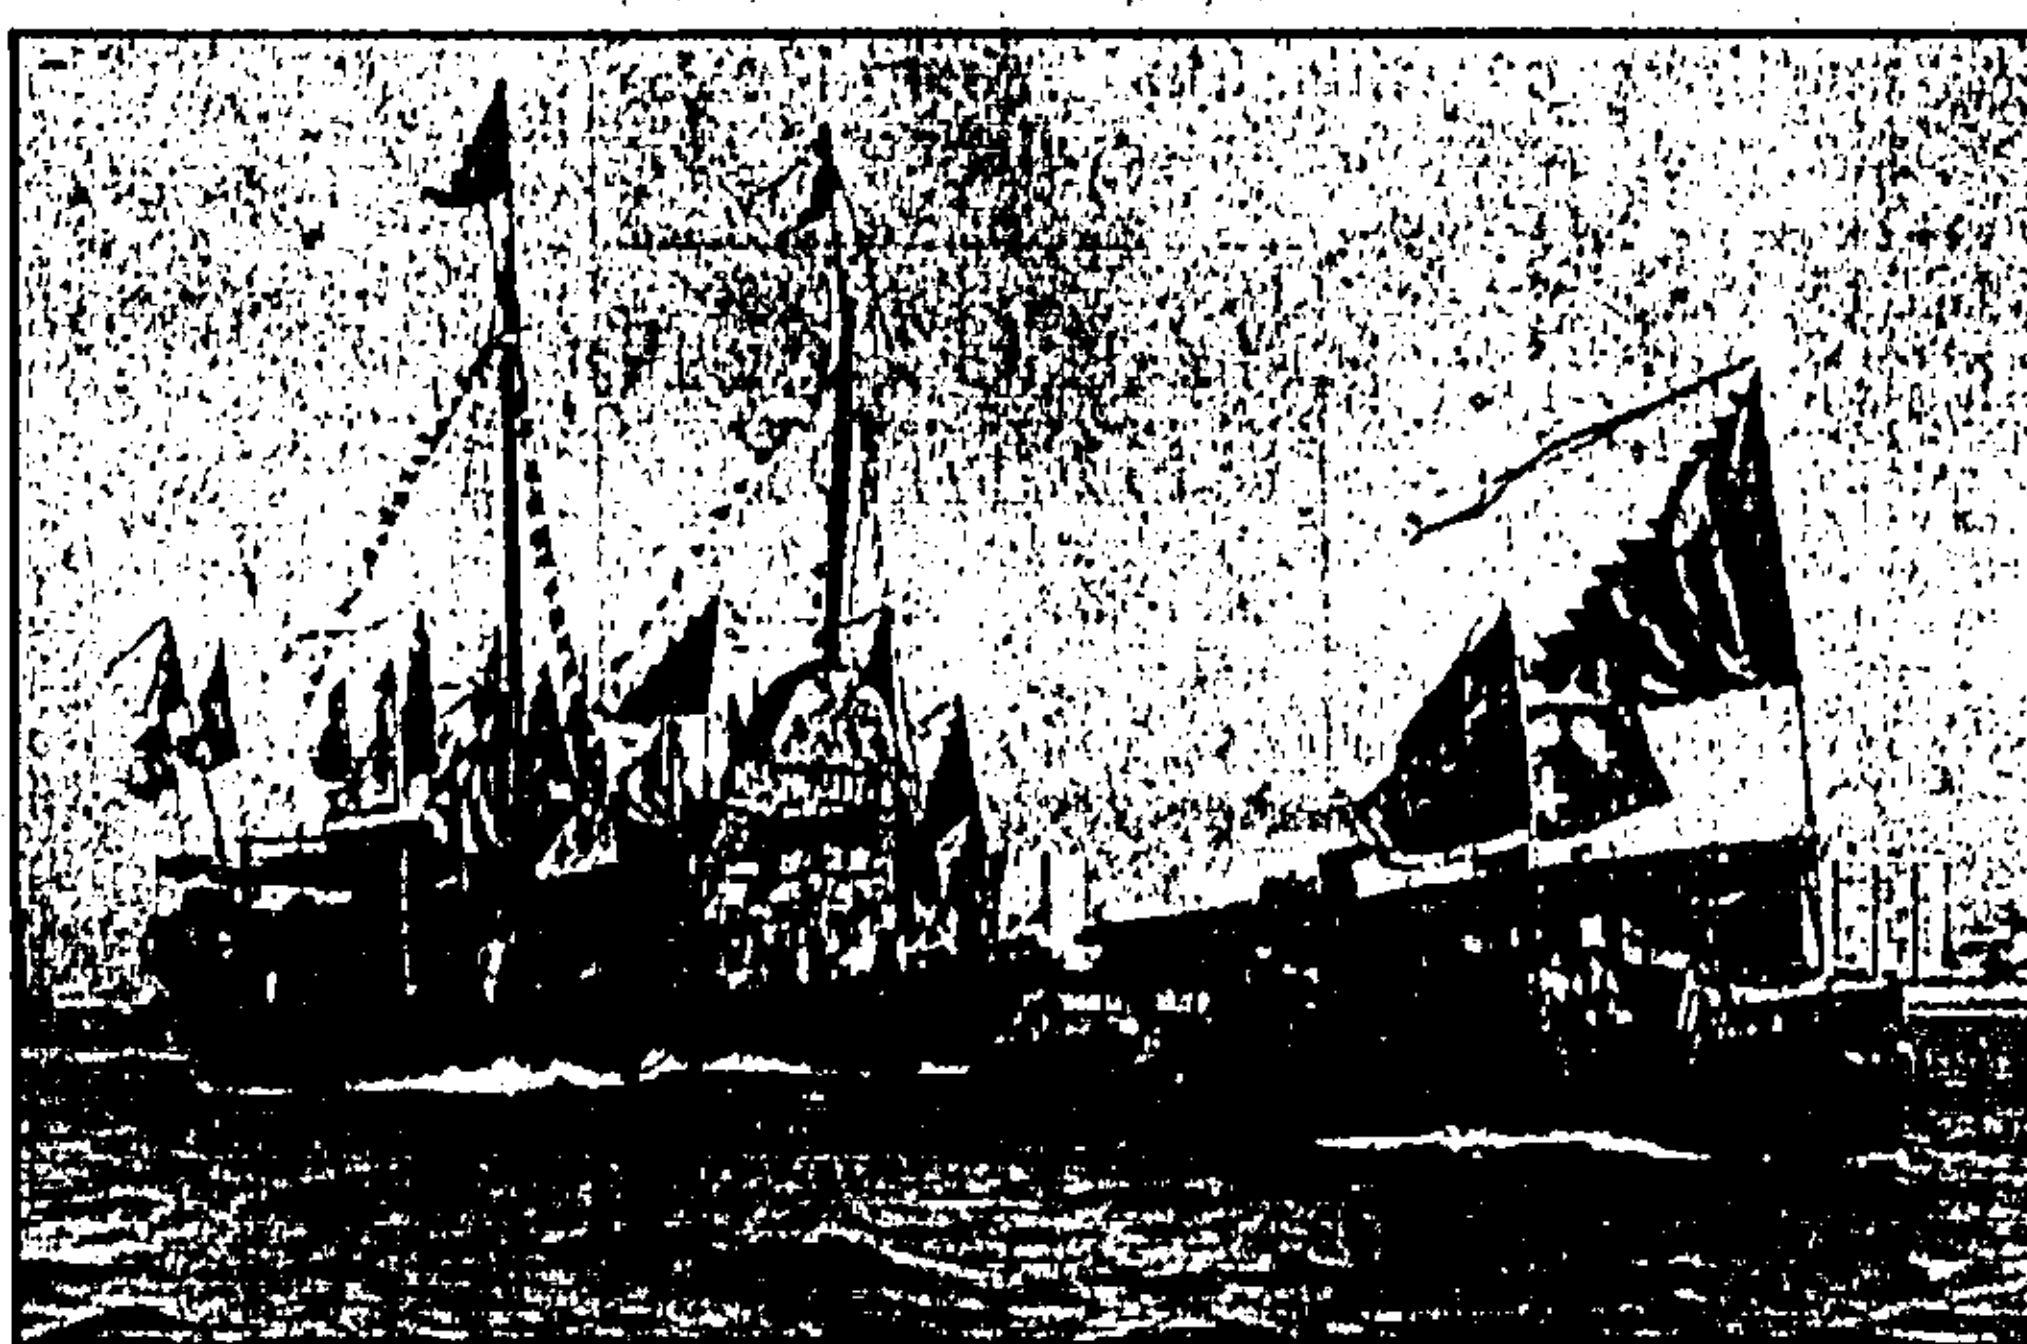

MR WIKSTROM

Major S. M. Churn

The friends of Major S. M. Churn who has been in hospital for the last two months will be pleased to hear that he returned home this morning.

Many junk people went to Joss House Bay, outside Lymun, this morning to celebrate the birthday of the Goddess of Heaven, the guardian goddess of fisherfolk, at the Tin Hau Temple there.

MURDER TRIAL CONTINUES Inmate's Evidence

An inmate of the Cape Collinson Boys' Training Centre said in evidence at a murder trial this morning that sometime during the night on November 16-17 last year he saw one of his colleagues strike something in a blanket lying on the ground with a brick.

"The parcel had the form of a human being and two other inmates were holding down each end of it," he said.

Chan Sun was giving evidence at the murder trial of Yau Kin-wah, 20, Ng Tak-wai, 21, Chiu Suk-kai, 20 and Choi To, 19 who are accused of having murdered So Shui-bor on the night of November 16-17 last year at Cape Collinson Boys' Training Centre.

Chan Sun said that during that night he was awakened by noise.

"There was a group of people around the parcel, and I recognised the four accused and Number 214. (Lam Yui-yau)," he said.

"The fourth accused delivered about four blows to what was under the blanket with a brick. He was using both hands to hold the brick."

"The first and third accused were holding down the head and feet of what was under the blanket, and the second accused stood as before against the wall."
"The brick broke the foundry and second accused then jointly wrapped what was in the blankets with ropes and carried it out of the hut."

"DON'T YOU MOVE"

"As it was being carried out, Choi To said 'Don't you move, lay down, the one who moves will be struck.'"
Hearing is continuing.

Judgment Of Solomon

A man and a 15-year-old boy were ordered by Mr D. Benson at Central Juvenile Court this morning to carry a wooden plank from the Court to the owner's shop at West Point.

The man, Wong Chiu-yin, 25, and the boy had admitted stealing the 15-foot plank yesterday. Both defendants were bound over in $250 for two years and also ordered to carry the plank back to the shop under the watchful eyes of the owner.

Police Dogs To Join Search For Greyhound

A wide search is being made to find the missing champion black greyhound, which escaped from the Jockey Club Kennels last Saturday.

Yesterday afternoon, the greyhound, named Negus, was sighted crossing Tai Hang Road going towards Blue Pool Road. Later that evening fresh greyhound tracks were found in Bowen Road near Stubbs Road.

LOUD HAILER

Mr Howell said a Police dog would be used to help track down the greyhound. The scent would be provided by the greyhound's collar. In addition the search party will use a long hailer.

Negus, with a $500 reward on his head for the finder, was brought to the Colony recently, and was quarantined in the Jockey Club Kennels.

Asked why such strenuous efforts were being made to locate the missing dog, Mr Howell said it was a very valuable animal, and a champion one at that. The owner's telephone number is 96434.

From the Files

25 years AGO

CHINA is much concerned over Sir John Simon's recent reference to Japan's "special rights" in China. In spite of the explanation made by the Foreign Office today which actually disclosed that Britain regards Manchuria as an integral part of China, Chinese circles feel resentment at the Foreign Minister's words.

At the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, the Chairman was Mr C. Gordon Mackie. The vice chairman was the Hon Mr W. H. Bell, and the following were members of the general committee, Mr W. J. Keavick, Mr C. G. Knight, Mr T. E. Pearce, Mr A. L. Shields, Mr M. S. Walsh, Mr J. P. Warren and also the following co-opted members, Sir William Shenton and Mr G. C. Pelham, the Trade Commissioner.

Mrs Isabelle Carr, wife of Mr T. W. Carr of the Public Works Department, died suddenly last evening. She was riding in a ricksha near her home in Kowloon when she had a seizure and collapsed.

At a very pretty wedding at St Andrew's Cathedral, Singapore, Miss John Frank, daughter of Mr and Mrs A. J. Frank formerly of China Underwriters Hongkong, became the bride of Dr John Heron.

Mr Charles Shuttleworth of Arnold and Co was today married to Miss Edith Whitaker at St John's Cathedral. Mr H. H. Priestley gave away the bride. Mr David Jones was best man.

A WEDDING of interest by the Registrar when Miss Lidia Wong, daughter of Mr and Mrs Santiago P. Wong, was married to Mr Chan Pak-shun, son of Mr and Mrs Chan Fu-cheung.

The bridegroom's father, who is well-known in business circles in Hong Kong, is the owner of the Queen's Theatre building and also a chain of Chinese hotels, including the Nathan Hotel, the Luk Hot Tung and Luk Kwok Fan Dim.

The death occurred yesterday of Mr Osman Madar, who was for 30 years employed by the Naval Armaments Office and was a prominent member of the Indian community.

The Plastic Bird-Maker

By A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Every afternoon a man can be seen in Wyndham Street fashioning birds and dragons with colourful plastic "thread."

He is Shung Ching-shan, a Chinese refugee and his models earn him $2.50 a day. Shung is a native of Hankow, Hupeh. He left his wife and son to come to Hong Kong in 1949 "to look for a job."

HARD TIME

After a hard time, he found one—as earth cools at a building site. He was content with this at first because he knew it was difficult to secure any other job. So he kept on working from one site to another, until after five years, he felt worn out.

"My poor earnings were not enough to give me nourishment to keep up my energy. A coolie needs strength to work," he explained. Then he lost his job.

IN HOSPITAL

One day he visited a clansman who was sick in a hospital. His friend was making a bird with plastic thread to kill time. As he watched he suddenly decided to try and make a living doing the same thing.

"So I learned the technique from him, and brought back one of his models to study."

Two months later, he proved to be much better than his clansman. Developing his skill with imagination, he found he could make several types of birds—parrots, geese, cranes, sparrows and a phoenix—and then dragons.

SHUNG CHING-SHAN

MOVE TO TOWN

At first he sold his models in Repulse Bay and attracted quite a number of customers, especially Europeans. Later he moved to town and finally stationed himself in Wyndham Street last October.

He sells the ornaments at prices ranging from $2 for a small bird to $10 for a two-foot long dragon which takes him two days to make.

Earning less than $3 a day, he is, of course, not enough, but business prospects are not bright.

"I cannot accept big orders even if there are any, for it takes time to make these birds," he added.

Legal Adviser Visits Colony Magistracies

Sir Kenneth Roberts-Wray, legal adviser to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, visited the Central and Kowloon Magistracies this morning with the Chief Justice, Sir Michael Hogan.

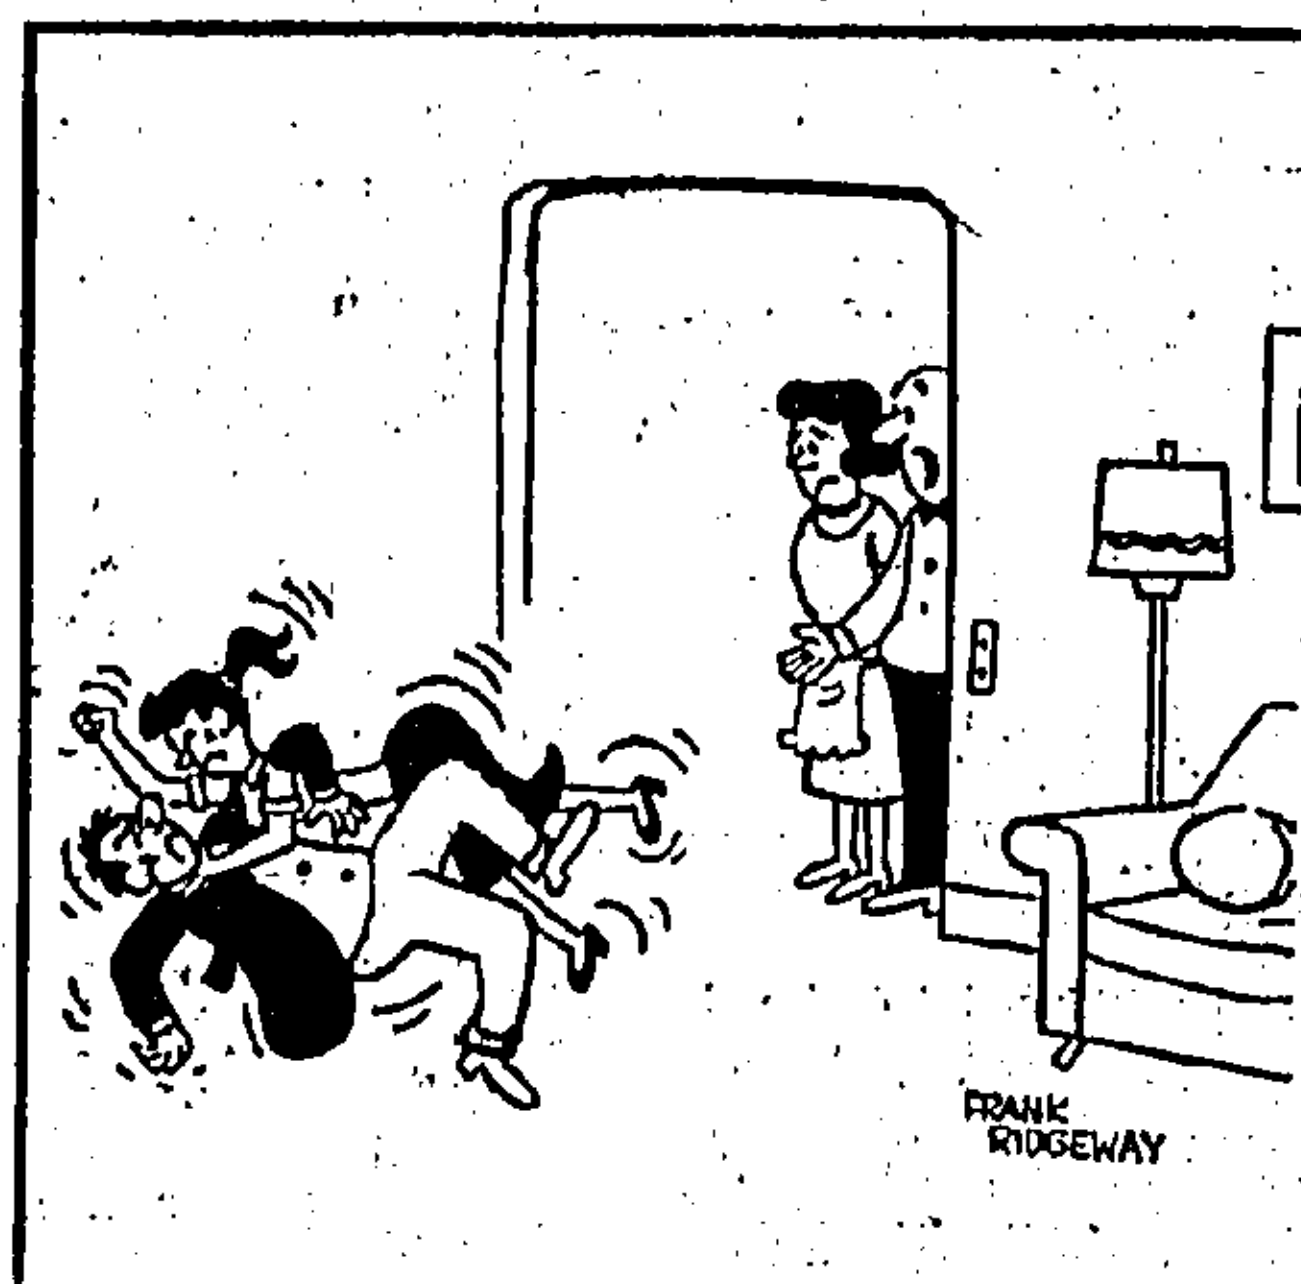

At Central Magistracy Sir Kenneth was met by Mr I. Kitchell, First Clerk, and was conducted on a tour of the court rooms where cases were being heard.

Sir Kenneth and Sir Michael later went to the Kowloon Magistracy, where they were greeted by Mr C. M. Leung, Deputy Registrar of the District Court, Mr Henry Ma, First Clerk and Mr Jack Vanthall, Senior Bailiff. The party then toured the court rooms, including the District courts, and the probation office.
